Disability Assessment Research Clinic (DARC)

The Disability Assessment Research Clinic (DARC) services the state of Arizona by providing children and adults with comprehensive evaluations to assist in the diagnosis of various disabilities, psychological disorders, and to provide treatment recommendations.

DARC offers the following types of evaluations for children ages 6+ and adults:

- Psychological Evaluation:
  To determine the presence of a psychological disorder that may be interfering with an individual’s ability to function.

- Psychoeducational Evaluation:
  To determine the presence of an intellectual disability or learning disability.

- Attention-Deficit/Hyperactivity Disorder (ADHD) Evaluation:
  To determine the presence of one of the three types of ADHD.

- Autism Spectrum Disorder (ASD) Evaluation:
  To determine the diagnosis of ASD and the specific accompanying impairments.

- Neuropsychological Evaluation:
  Assesses a client’s cognitive functioning, particularly if there is a known congenital disorder, history of epilepsy, traumatic brain injury, to rule out dementia, or any other medical ailments that can affect one’s thinking and behavior.

To make an appointment, call (520) 626-2982 or email us at: darc@arthritis.arizona.edu

The University of Arizona Arthritis Center
Disability Assessment Research Clinic
1335 N. Cherry Ave., Tucson, AZ 85719
Tel: (520) 626-2982 | Fax: (520) 626-2525